

Forest Hills Friday News

Friends and Family of Forest Hills,

I had the chance to read a book somewhat recently entitled, “Hold On To Your Kids: Why Parents Matter,” by Dr. Gordon Neufeld. In this book, Dr. Neufeld speaks about the role of parents in the life of their children, and clearly articulates many great aspects of parenting today.

It starts with the main principle that the relationship parents have with their children must be paramount. Children look for a main relationship with someone, and it needs to be with their parents. They need to be able to go to their parents with anything, and know that they are loved, no matter what happens. All too often, children look to other children for this kind of a relationship, and no child is equipped to be in a ‘parenting’ role.

This book is a wonderful read, and it challenges all parents to consider how they relate to and interact with their children. I completely recommend it for anyone interested in a powerful read.

I couldn’t help though but think about the relationship that we have with our Heavenly Father. As the book talks about primary relationships with parents, we need to consider that our primary relationship must be with God, our loving Heavenly Father. All too often, we look to other things for answers, direction, and acceptance. We turn our backs on the one who has all the answers we seek – the one who has made promises that never will He leave us or forsake us.

Not only SHOULD we turn to God with all our lives, but that’s exactly what He wants! God wants His children to pray. God wants His children to turn to Him with all their heart, and pour their souls to Him. This is the healthiest thing we can do for our souls both now and for eternity.

As you learn and walk with God in your role as a parent, never forget your role as His child. When the two work together, amazing things happen. That’s God’s promise too!
